"Play a Fair, Square Game," Says G. T. Kirby

OUSTAVUS T. KIRBY, president of the American Olympic A.
A. U., in addressing members of the Olympic hockey team just previous to their departure yesterday aboard the Finland on the way to Antwerp said:

"Boys, you are sailing to-day as the American representatives of the hockey game and we look for you to win-to bring back the victory to these shores and to uphold the honor of the United States in this Olympic contest. From now until the hockey competition closes the eyes of American sportsmen and the public in general will be watching you and your actions in the game.

"Whatever you do, whether you win or lose, I exhort you to play a fair, square game, and especially to do nothing that will give your opponents cause to question your spirit of manliness and fair play.

"This sailing of our hockey players and skaters more than four months before the principal events of the Olympic games emphasizes the magnitude of the Seventh Olympiad and the worldwide movement represented. Although the American Olympic Committee has been organized for some months, the departure of the men to-day is the initial demonstration of the activities of this organization. Good luck!

It is difficult to understand why the seaside club should have chosen such a date as May 13, 14 and 15, but the answer may be found in the fact that this year it has a thirty-six hole circuit, and is making ready to show it off to the world.
